Abdalla, Fauzia Ph.D., CCC-SLP, is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Communication Science at Kuwait University. She teaches and researches in the area of stuttering and developmental language disorders.

Arnold, Hayley is an assistant professor in the Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology at Kent State University in Kent, Ohio. Her research involves the use of psychophysiology to study linguistic, autonomic, and motor factors in relation to developmental stuttering.

Atwood, Julie Professor Julie Atwood is an ASHA fellow and a developer of the Communication Sciences and Disorders Department at the MGH Institute of Health Professions. She was Director of the Speech-Language Pathology and Swallowing Department at Massachusetts General Hospital and its three neighborhood health centers for 35 years.

Baker, Julie is a first-year graduate student in Speech-Language Pathology at Marshall University.

Barney, Emily is a second-year graduate student in Speech-Language Pathology at Marshall University.

Beste-Guldborg, Ann M. Dr. Beste-Guldborg is an Assistant Professor at Minot State University in Minot, North Dakota. She has 28 years of experience as a practicing speech/language pathologist, school administrator, and college faculty member. Her research interests lie in stuttering perceptions, cluttering, and effective pedagogy.

Boyer, Dinamichele is a fourth year Speech-Language Pathology major at Misericordia University.

Burgess, Megan, B.S. is a speech-language pathology Master's student. She received her baccalaureate degree in Speech Pathology and Audiology at West Virginia University in 2012.

Campanale, Nichole is a speech language pathologist in Eagle River, Alaska. She is just beginning her career having recently graduated with a Master of Science Degree in Communication Disorders from Minot State University in Minot, North Dakota.

Childers, Kayla is a second-year graduate student in Speech-Language Pathology at Marshall University.

Coleman, Craig is an Assistant Professor at Marshall University. Craig is a Board-Recognized Specialist in Fluency Disorders. He is the co-founder of MC Speech Books and the Director of the Virtual Stuttering Center. Craig also currently serves on the ASHA SIG-4 Coordinating Committee. He is a two-term president of the Pennsylvania Speech-Language-Hearing Association.

Cook, Susanne Dr. Susanne Cook is a speech therapist from Germany, who specialised in fluency disorders since 1995. She has been running an intensive therapy summer program for CWS for ten years. Her research interests include therapy outcomes for CWS, orofacial training for PWS, and the psychosocial impact of stuttering and bullying.

Daniels, Derek Ph.D., CCC-SLP, is an Assistant Professor of Communication Disorders at Wayne State University. Dr. Daniels has extensive clinical and teaching experience related to stuttering. His research interests include stuttering (school experiences, identity, treatment outcomes) and psychosocial aspects of disability.
Donsbach, Cassie is a junior Speech-Language Pathology student at Marshall University.

Douglass, Jill Ph.D., CCC-SLP is a senior lecturer at Massey University in Auckland, New Zealand. She received her doctoral degree (2011) at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette under the supervision of Dr. John Tetnowski. Her research interests include qualitative analysis of the lived experiences of people who covertly stutter.

Elsiddig, Yomna will earn her M.S. in Speech-Language Pathology in 2013 from the MGH Institute of Health Professions where she is completing a thesis under the advisement of Dr. Charles Haynes and Professor Julie Atwood. She holds a B.S. from Northwestern University in Communication Sciences and Disorders and Global Health.

Gabel, Rodney, Ph.D., CCC-SLP, BRS-FD is an Associate Professor at the University of Toledo. He teaches courses in stuttering and directs the Northwest Ohio Intensive Stuttering Clinics. He conducts research exploring outcomes of stuttering therapy and psychosocial impacts of stuttering. Dr. Gabel has presented multiple papers and published many articles all dealing with aspects of stuttering.

Goldblum, Elana is a first-year graduate student in Speech-Language Pathology at Marshall University.

Goltl, Kathryn is pursuing her M.A in Speech-Language Pathology at Kent State University in Kent, Ohio. Kathryn has clinical and research interests related to developmental stuttering.

Haynes, Charles Dr. Haynes served on ASHA’s Multi-Cultural Issues Board, and contributed to “Knowledge and Skills Needed by Speech-Language Pathologists and Audiologists to Provide Culturally and Linguistically Appropriate Services” (ASHA, 2004). He received his doctorate from Harvard University and has been Principal or Co-Principal Investigator on numerous cross-cultural projects addressing language and literacy.

Howell, Peter is Professor of Experimental Psychology at University College London. He has had an interest in research into stuttering for more than 25 years.

Hughes, Stephanie, Ph.D., CCC-SLP, is an Assistant Professor at the University of Toledo's Speech-Language Pathology Program. She teaches courses in language disorders and voice disorders and is the Assistant Director of the Northwest Ohio Intensive Stuttering Clinics. Dr. Hughes is a member of the International Bullying Prevention Association.

Irani, Farzan Ph.D., CCC-SLP is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Communication Disorders at Texas State University. His research interests include treatment effectiveness of stuttering therapy, incorporation of technology in therapy service delivery, and psychosocial aspects of stuttering.

Jayawardena, Chanta BDS, Ph.D. is a Senior lecturer in the Department of Basic Sciences and Faculty of Dental Sciences University of Peradeniya, Sri Lanka. She graduated from the University of Peradeniya, Sri Lanka and obtained her Ph.D. from Tokyo Medical and Dental University Japan.

Kuhn, Chelsea, B.S. is a speech-language pathology Master's student. She received her baccalaureate degree in Speech Pathology and Audiology at West Virginia University in 2012.
Kuruppu, Saminda is a Sri Lanka Medical College Council registered Speech and Language Therapist who is currently working mainly in the schools. She completed the BSc in Speech and Language Therapy (pending results) from the Faculty of Medicine, University of Kelaniya in Sri Lanka. Working as a resource person for the National Institute of Education – Sri Lanka.

Langevin, Marilyn is Director of Research at the Institute for Stuttering Treatment and Research (ISTAR), Faculty of Rehabilitation Medicine, University of Alberta. Her research and clinical interests include the impact of stuttering on preschool and school-age children, evidence-based treatment and clinical training practices, and neural function associated with stuttering.

LeMasters, Staci B.S., received her baccalaureate degree in Speech Pathology and Audiology at West Virginia University in 2012, where she is currently pursuing a master’s degree in speech-language pathology.

Lubker, Bobbie Boyd retired from UNC-Chapel Hill. She holds a master’s degree and ASHA certification in SLP and a PhD in public health epidemiology. She was an early participant in the WVU international stuttering project. Her research has emphasized epidemiologies of childhood disabilities and language-learning of chronically ill children.

Lubker, John Lynn holds the Ph.D. in clinical psychology. He is retired from UNC-Chapel Hill and John Umstead Psychiatric Hospital. His clinical and research interests are in behavioral aspects of neuro-pathologies and staff responses to “normal” behaviors in psychiatric settings. He plays a mean trombone and a good golf game.

Lytwak, Lindsey, M.S. is a speech-language pathologist who received her master’s degree from West Virginia University.

Miluk, Brianna is a junior Speech-Language Pathology student at Marshall University.

Poormohammad, Ahmad, MSC, is a speech-language pathologist and part-time lecturer at the Ibn-e-Sina Psychiatric Hospital in the Mashhad University of Medical Sciences in Iran. He has carried out research and treatment in malingering in stuttering as well as public attitudes toward male and females who stutter.

Reichel, Isabella Ed.D., CCC-SLP/A has specialized in the treatment of stuttering for over three decades. She is the chair of the Committee of International Representatives of the International Cluttering Association. Her studies on fluency disorders, innovative curricula and international collaboration among professionals were published and presented nationally and internationally.

Roseman, Christopher, Dr. Christopher Roseman is an Assistant Professor in the Counselor Education Program at the University of Toledo. He is a licensed Professional Counselor-Clinical Resident (PC-CR) in Ohio, a Nationally Certified Counselor, and an instructor in Nonviolent Crisis Intervention for the Crisis Prevention Institute.

Scaler Scott, Kathleen Ph.D., CCC-SLP is a speech-language pathologist and Board Recognized Fluency Specialist. She has been a practicing clinician for 20 years. Dr. Scaler Scott is also an Assistant Professor of Speech-Language Pathology at Misericordia University and Co-Chair of NSA’s Research Committee.

Scott, Natasha is a second-year graduate student in Speech-Language Pathology at Marshall University.
St. Louis, Kenneth O. Ph.D., founder of IPATHA (International Project on Attitudes Toward Human Attributes), has conducted research on attitudes of clinicians and the general public toward stuttering and other potentially stigmatizing conditions. He has published and presented widely on aspects of stuttering and cluttering for more than 35 years.

Stephans, Leigh is a first-year graduate student in Speech-Language Pathology at Marshall University.

Stewart, Katrina is a second-year graduate student in Speech-Language Pathology at Marshall University.

Strugalla, Edward M.H.S., is a speech-language pathologist practicing in the Chicago area. Before becoming an SLP, Ed worked as a professional counselor. His research interests are qualitative in nature and include public perceptions of stuttering and clinician training in pediatric dysphagia.

Tetnowski, John Ph.D., CCC-SLP is an Associate Professor and the Ben Blanco Memorial Endowed Professor in Communication Disorders at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette. He is an ASHA approved fluency specialist and mentor. He has treated people who stutter for over 15 years.

Weidner, Mary is a doctoral student at West Virginia University with an interest in childhood stuttering. She previously worked at Children’s Hospital of Pittsburgh where she was involved in the evaluation and treatment of children who stutter. She is co-owner of MC Speech Books and co-leader of support groups for children who stutter.

Wesierska, Katarzyna is a lecturer at the Department of Sociolinguistics and Social Communication Practices at the University of Silesia, Poland.

Wesierska, Marta graduated with a BSc in Psychology at the University of Warwick, UK in July 2013.